

SPORTPET DESIGNS®

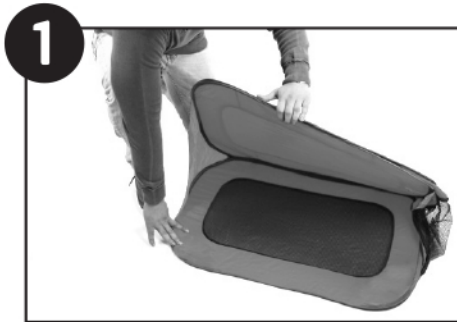

While SportPet offers innovative and convenient kennel options, our pop-open kennels are designed to expand kennel options for owners of kennel trained dogs. Being contained in a kennel can be uncomfortable for untrained dogs, and untrained dogs will be able to escape. Therefore, in order to maximize the usefulness and convenience of our pop-open kennels, dog owners must kennel train their dogs. Furthermore, we do not advocate use of our kennels to contain vicious or aggressive dogs.

TIPS FOR KENNEL TRAINING YOUR DOG

- Introduce your dog to his kennel in a non-threatening environment
- Begin by kenneling your dog for short periods of time (2-5 minutes) with the door open. Remain with your dog and offer praise to keep the dog calm and comfortable in the kennel. Gradually increase the length of time your dog spends in his kennel.
- Once your dog is comfortable being in his kennel with the door open while you remain close by, start kenneling him for short periods of time (2-5 minutes) with the door closed. Again, remain with your dog and offer praise to keep him relaxed while the door is closed. Gradually increase the length of time your dog spends kennelled with the door closed.
- After your dog is comfortable staying in a closed kennel in your presence, proceed by leaving your dog kennelled and unattended for short periods of time (30-60 minutes). Remember to offer praise when a dog behaves and remains in an unattended kennel. As your dog becomes familiar and comfortable being kennelled, gradually increase the amount of time he spends kennelled and unattended.
